

CARASOFT EXPANDS SYMANTEC OFFERINGS TO INCLUDE ALTIRIS PRODUCTS FOR THE U.S. GOVERNMENT

Carahsoft Now Serves as GSA Schedule Holder and Platinum Partner for Altiris Solutions

Reston, Va. – November 27, 2007- Carahsoft Technology Corp., a leading government information technology provider, today announced an expanded relationship with Symantec Corporation to become the GSA schedule holder for Altiris solutions for the public sector channel.

Altiris, now part of Symantec, offers a proven solution for the most demanding systems management challenges. Symantec combines Altiris endpoint management technology with security and back-up expertise to deliver a unique set of solutions to the government market. Altiris technology has been selected by some of the most respected government agencies and several other state, local and education organizations to help reduce overall costs of securing and managing their IT assets.

"We are pleased to add Altiris' systems management solutions to our Symantec line of product offerings," said Craig P. Abod, president of Carahsoft. "Altiris products and services are now available on GSA Schedule and many state contracts through Carahsoft; and are available for our team of partners as well."

Shane Eliason, Symantec VP of federal sales, Altiris business unit, said, "Symantec and Carahsoft have an established history of helping government customers be confident in their electronic interactions. Adding Altiris solutions to the Symantec offering is a natural extension. Government customers can now turn to Carahsoft for the full complement of Symantec endpoint security and management solutions and services."
